PREFACE

This fourth and final volume of parliamentary election results follows the layout and presentation adopted in the earlier volumes but omits percentage figures and majorities. To have included such figures for the 1832-85 period would have been pointless for reasons which are explained in the Introductory Notes.

As with the earlier volumes in this series, I have received the most willing help and co-operation of very many people and I would especially like to thank John Palmer, an Assistant Librarian, House of Commons Library; David Johnson, Assistant Clerk of the Records, House of Lords Record Office; Frank Simmons, Royal Courts of Justice; Dr. James Kellas of the Department of Politics, University of Glasgow; Geoffrey Block of the Conservative Research Department; George Awdry, formerly Librarian of the Gladstone Library; Dr. Brian Walker of Queen's University, Belfast, and the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin.

The research work was principally carried out at the British Library (Reference Division), Bloomsbury and Colindale; the Public Record Office; the Gladstone Library of the National Liberal Club; Westminster Central Reference Library; the Guildhall Library; the House of Lords Record Office; Chichester Public Library. The helpfulness and co-operation of librarians and staff was gratifying and it was heartening to note a very considerable improvement in the service provided by the British Library. Gone for good, I hope, are the days of frequent delays and incivility.

Although the typescript and proof-pages were subjected to very thorough checking, it is inevitable that some errors will have gone undetected and I must again ask readers to bring these to my attention so that future reprints can be corrected.

This volume brings to a close a series which was commenced some eight years ago and now provides a unique reference source to parliamentary election results during the past 140 years.

SYMBOLS

- † before the name of a candidate in 1832 indicates a member of the previous Parliament at the time of Dissolution.
- † following an electorate indicates a boundary change.
- * following an electorate indicates that no figure was available for that election and the total shown represents the number of electors on an earlier register.
- * before the name of a candidate indicates that he was elected as the result of an election petition.
-  before the name of a candidate indicates that he was found not to have been elected as the result of an election petition.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

General Note The name of the constituency at the top of each page is followed, within square brackets, by a constituency reference number which is used in the indexes to candidates and constituencies. This number should not be confused with the folio number which appears in small type at the foot of each page.

Under the name of each constituency are five columns with the following headings:

- | | |
|------------------|--|
| Election | The year of each General Election and the date of any intervening by-election. |
| Electors | The number of electors on the Register in force at the time of the election. |
| Candidate | The initials and surname of the candidate ¹ . |
| Party | The party affiliation of the candidate. |
| Votes | The number of votes polled by the candidate. |

BY-ELECTIONS These are denoted by the year followed by the date (day/month) within round brackets. The dates are those given in the official Return of Members of Parliament (House of Commons Papers, 1878 (69–1), Ixii and 1890–91 (169), Ixii, 281). This Return was compiled from the indentures and writs preserved in the Public Record Office and refer to (prior to the Ballot Act of 1872) the date of the indenture which was normally the day on which the Returning Officer declared the result. From July 1872 the date given was that on which the endorsed writ was received at the Crown Office which could be a few days (or in rare cases several days) after polling had taken place.

The cause of the by-election is shown within square brackets above the year, and if the MP was elevated or succeeded to the Peerage, his new title is given.

Under the provisions of the Succession to the Crown Act, 1707 and a number of subsequent Acts, MPs appointed to certain ministerial and legal offices were required to seek re-election. For a list of offices which if accepted by an MP were held to vacate his seat but did not debar him from seeking re-election see A Complete Dictionary of the Law and Practice of Elections by J.D. Chambers (pp. 211–216, London, 1837).

Apart from by-elections caused through ministerial or legal appointments, vacancies could only occur for one of the following reasons: (1) death; (2) elevation or succession to the Peerage; (3) acceptance of an office of profit under the Crown (including certain nominal offices to which MPs who wish to resign are appointed); (4) bankruptcy; (5) lunacy; (6) election petition; (7) expulsion from the House of Commons; (8) sitting or voting in the House of Commons without taking the oath or affirmation of allegiance; (9) disqualification from having been elected to the House of Commons.

CONSTITUENCY BOUNDARIES Details of the area included within constituency boundaries in England and Wales will be found in the Parliamentary Boundary Act, 1832, the Representation of the People Act, 1867 and the Parliamentary Boundary Act, 1868. For constituencies in Scotland the relative Acts are the Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1832 and the Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1868.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

Other than changes caused through the disfranchisement of certain boroughs (see Appendix 2) the only boundary changes during the period took place at the General Election of 1868.

Maps showing constituency boundaries in detail were included with the Boundary Commission report published in 1868.

ELECTION PETITIONS These are briefly recorded in footnotes to the constituency pages and are summarised in Table 12, p. 631.

For a list of reports on election petitions, see Select List of British Parliamentary Papers 1833-1899 by P. & G. Ford, pp. 135-143 (Oxford, 1953).

ELECTORATE STATISTICS The figures of electors at General Elections and by-elections have been taken from official Returns wherever possible. In the relatively few cases where I was unable to obtain official figures, I have relied upon the reference books of Charles Dod and Henry Stooks Smith. At the General Election of 1865, no electorate figures, either official or unofficial were available (except for county constituencies) and for the boroughs I have used the figures of the 1865-66 Register instead of 1864-65.

Due to the system of registration during the period, it was common for some electors to have their names recorded more than once in the same electoral register. They were however only entitled to vote once in the same constituency and many of the official Returns published during the period gave no indication as to the number of duplicates. The electorate figures must therefore be regarded as only approximate and, especially in Scotland, the registers published in the 1830's and 1840's were not subject to revision and contained a large number of names of electors who had died or moved from the constituency.

A rise or fall in the electorate of a constituency may merely indicate that duplicate entries had been included or excluded from a particular set of figures.

For the above reasons it is not possible to calculate turnout with any degree of accuracy and prior to the Ballot Act of 1872, it was possible for a candidate to withdraw and the poll to be closed before the normal time.

The date on which the annual electoral registers came into effect were as follows:

ENGLAND and WALES:	1 November 1832 to 31 October 1833 and annually 1 December 1843 to 30 November 1844 and annually 1 January 1868 to 31 October 1868 1 November 1868 to 31 December 1869 1 January 1870 to 31 December 1870 and annually 1 January 1885 to 18 November 1885
SCOTLAND:	15 October 1832 to 14 September 1833 15 September 1833 to 14 September 1834 and annually 15 September 1855 to 31 October 1856 (burghs only) 1 November 1856 to 31 October 1857 (burghs only) and annually 15 September 1861 to 31 October 1862 (counties only) 1 November 1862 to 31 October 1863 and annually

GENERAL ELECTION POLLING DATES For a detailed time-table of each General Election see Table 8, p. 627.

IRELAND As in previous volumes in this series, detailed constituency results in Ireland (prior to the creation of Northern Ireland in 1921) are not included. However, the statistics of elections in Ireland have been included in the Tables and Appendices, and Appendix 1 (pp. 635-639) summarises the party representation in the House of Commons after each General Election. I am grateful to Dr. Brian M. Walker and the editors of a New History of Ireland for permitting me to make use of a typescript of the first volume of a definitive reference work on Irish elections Parliamentary Election Results in Ireland 1801-1922 which will be published later this year by the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin.

LIBERAL CONSERVATIVES This was the name given to the followers of Sir Robert Peel after he broke with the Conservative Party in 1846 over the repeal of the Corn Laws. Some of these free-trade Conservatives returned to the official wing of the Conservative Party after a period of independence while others became Liberals. The problems in defining Liberal Conservatives at the General Elections from 1847 to 1859 are immense and no two sources of reference agree. The term more or less went out of use just after the General Election of 1859 when many of the Liberal Conservatives joined with the Whigs and Radicals to defeat the minority Conservative Government. From then on it was fairly simple to decide whether an MP should be classed as a Conservative or a Liberal.

Throughout the book Liberal Conservatives have been classed as Conservatives until such time as they appear to have severed all links with that party and become Liberals.

For a detailed study of the Peelites or Liberal Conservatives see J.B. Conacher's The Aberdeen Coalition 1852-1855 (Cambridge, 1968) and The Peelites and the Party System 1846-52 (Newton Abbot, 1972).

LIBERAL/LABOUR CANDIDATES These candidates were in most cases nominees of local Liberal and Radical associations but campaigned mainly on trade union and labour issues. A number of them were sponsored by trade unions and at the General Election of 1874 thirteen candidates were supported by the Labour Representation League.

MULTIPLE CANDIDATURES With polling at General Elections spread over several weeks it was possible for candidates to contest more than one constituency at the same election and there were a number of cases of candidates being returned for more than one constituency. See Appendix 3, p. 641.

PARTY DESIGNATIONS The party designations of candidates have been extensively cross-checked against numerous contemporary reference books and discrepancies subjected to further research. The party designation of each MP was verified by checking the biographical entry in Dod's Parliamentary Companion.

During a period when party ties were often tenuous and changes of party allegiance after election were frequent and rarely reported in the national press, there is no doubt that some errors will have occurred, but these are unavoidable. There were always a number of candidates who could equally well have been classed as Liberal or Conservative.

POLLING The number of days and the hours of polling were as follows:

ENGLISH and WELSH BOROUGHS:

From 1832 until 24 August, 1835, polling was held on two consecutive days, the poll being open from 9.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the first day and from 8.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the second day. From 25 August, 1835 polling was restricted to one day between the hours of 8.0 a.m. and 4.0 p.m.

From 25 February, 1878 polling in the London boroughs was altered to 8.0 a.m. to 8.0 p.m. and from 28 July, 1884 this later closing of the poll was extended to other boroughs in the United Kingdom with an electorate of over 3,000.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

ENGLISH and WELSH COUNTIES.

From 1832 until 1 October, 1853 polling was held on two consecutive days the poll being open from 9.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the first day and from 8.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the second day. From 2 October, 1853 polling was restricted to one day between the hours of 8.0 a.m. and 5.0 p.m.

SCOTTISH BURGHS:

From 1832 until 8 September, 1835 polling was held on two consecutive days the poll being open from 9.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the first day and from 8.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the second day. From 9 September, 1835 polling was restricted to one day between the hours of 8.0 a.m. and 4.0 p.m.

SCOTTISH COUNTIES:

From 1832 until 13 June, 1853 polling was held on two consecutive days the poll being open from 9.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the first day and from 8.0 a.m. to 4.0 p.m. on the second day. From 14 June, 1853 polling was restricted to one day (except in Orkney and Shetland) between the hours of 8.0 a.m. and 4.0 p.m.

UNIVERSITIES:

Prior to 1853 the Universities polled over a period of between 8 and 15 days. From 15 August, 1853 polling was restricted to a maximum of 5 days.

SURNAMES and INITIALS The surname and initials of candidates have been cross-checked against various contemporary reference books and local histories. It is impossible to be certain of complete accuracy, especially with unsuccessful candidates, but every effort has been made to verify the numerous discrepancies which came to light.

VOTING STATISTICS The number of votes cast for candidates have been taken from official Returns wherever possible and in other cases the figures have been cross-checked against the principal contemporary reference books. Numerous discrepancies were noted and these were further researched in local newspaper files. Prior to the introduction of the secret ballot in 1872 it must be remembered that it was perfectly possible for discrepancies to occur in subsequently published figures. At the close of polling, figures were normally issued by the candidates' agents (and these often varied slightly) before the official declaration, which might not take place until the following day or even later. The unofficial figures were used by the national press who frequently did not wait until the Returning Officer had counted the votes recorded in the pollbooks. The subsequent publication of privately printed pollbooks sometimes produced yet another set of figures.

During the checking, a number of polls were found which are not recorded in the contemporary reference books and I feel fairly confident that all the elections recorded as unopposed were in fact uncontested.

It was not infrequent for a candidate to withdraw on the eve of a poll and sometimes the Returning Officer insisted on formally opening the poll and then closing it after a few electors had voted. This explains some of the polls recorded in this book which show a contest with only a few votes recorded. A candidate could (and often did) withdraw after polling commenced and the poll would then close early. Although candidates were nominated on the hustings prior to 1872 when written nomination was introduced, it was possible for a person to become a candidate during the actual poll if he was nominated at a polling station by some electors. There was also no requirement that a candidate proposed on the hustings had to consent to his nomination or be present and there were several cases of an absent candidate being proposed without his knowledge or consent.

All these circumstances and the large number of two-member seats make the study of voting figures hazardous and turnout impossible to accurately calculate. I have therefore not included percentage figures either for turnout or votes cast for candidates. These figures have little value prior to 1885.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

It should be noted that from the General Election of 1868, electors in constituencies returning three MPs were only allowed to vote for two candidates. In the City of London constituency which returned four MPs, electors were only allowed to vote for three candidates.

WRITS SUSPENDED A form of punishment for corrupt constituencies was the suspension of the writ which should have been issued when a vacancy occurred. This was used fairly frequently during the period and all instances of writs being suspended for a considerable time are recorded in the footnotes on petitions. There were numerous other cases of writs being suspended for short periods or subject to divisions in the House of Commons.

1841: Leicester claimed to be the eldest son of the third Marquess of Townshend but in 1843 it was proved that he was an illegitimate son and not entitled to use the courtesy title of Earl of Leicester. For a short time he reverted to his real name of John Townshend but subsequently changed this by Royal License to John Dunn Gardner.

Petitions:-

1847: Withdrawn

1880: Withdrawn (Willis only). As the result of a recount there were found to be 1,641 undisputed votes for Learmonth and 1,640 for Willis. Twenty-three ballot papers were reserved for judgement on scrutiny but the Conservatives decided to withdraw the petition giving as their reason the costs involved. It would seem more likely that the real reason was that they considered that Willis was certain to maintain or increase his majority over Learmonth after the disputed ballot-papers had been dealt with.

Note:—

- 1838: During the hearing of the 1837 election petition, a compromise was reached between the Liberal and Conservative parties. It was agreed that at the end of the Parliamentary session Wilshere should resign and allow Baring to be elected without opposition. Although Wilshere did keep to the agreement and resigned, his supporters nominated him without his consent (he was abroad at the time) and he was re-elected.

1865: Void election

1866: The candidates had polled 153 votes each but the Returning Officer (who had voted for Campbell and was the father of Campbell's election agent) had given a casting vote to the Liberal candidate. A petition was lodged and the Committee decided that the Returning Officer had no right to a casting vote and should have returned both candidates. On scrutiny one vote was struck off Campbell's total and his election declared void. Brett declared duly elected. As a result of this case the House of Commons (July 26, 1866) resolved "that according to the law and usage of Parliament it is the duty of the sheriff or other returning officer in England, in the case of an equal number of votes being polled for two or more candidates at an election, to return all such candidates". The House decided to take no action against the Returning Officer who was the 75-year-old Mayor of Helston and said to be in poor health. He had failed to appear before the Committee hearing the petition but subsequently wrote to the Speaker claiming that he had consulted a legal textbook which indicated that he could give a casting vote.

Writ suspended. Royal Commission appointed which found proof of extensive bribery and as a result the borough lost its right to return a Member of Parliament and was incorporated into the county constituency of Suffolk, Western, from July 29, 1844.

Petitions:—

1834: Lapsed on Dissolution of Parliament. (The candidates had polled 263 votes each but the Returning Officer had given a casting vote to Barnes. A similar case arose at Helston in 1866 and as a result the House of Commons resolved that the Returning Officer did not have the right of a casting vote and it was his duty to return all candidates who polled equal votes).

Petition:—

1852: Election of Carter declared void owing to disqualification. Phillimore duly elected.

Note:—

1852:
(28/4) Trelawny's reasons for resigning and then becoming a candidate at the by-election are not entirely clear but local press reports suggest that it was probably the result of him having failed to support the more radical policies advocated by the local Liberals. Although he declared he was not seeking re-election, he made it clear that he would be prepared to take his seat in the House of Commons if re-elected and as a result he was nominated by his supporters.

Petition:—

- 1841: Double return. The poll books for two polling stations at Aberystwyth had been lost or stolen in transit to the Returning Officer who decided that in the circumstances it was best to return both candidates. The Committee accepted evidence that the polling at Aberystwyth had resulted Pryse 142 and Harford 59 making the totals, Pryse 305 and Harford 285. They declared the election of Harford void and found that Pryse was duly elected (Harford only).

Notes:-

This table should only be regarded as approximately correct. For an explanation of the difficulties in deciding to which party an MP belonged, see Introductory Notes (Party Designations). The figures given above reflect the state of parties after the double and treble returns (see Appendix 4) had been decided but prior to the changes caused by other types of election petitions.

The figures for Conservatives includes Liberal Conservative (Peelites) in 1847, 1852, 1857 and 1859. See Introductory Notes (Liberal Conservatives).

The figures for Liberals in Ireland includes Repealers in 1832, 1841 and 1847; Irish Confederate in 1847; Independent Opposition in 1857; Home Rulers in 1874 and 1880.

The figures for Liberals in Great Britain in 1874 and 1880 includes Liberal/Labour.

¹ A 'void' election was one in which the result was quashed and a new writ issued or in the case of 'double' and 'treble returns', the election of one member was found to be void.

² An 'undue' election was one in which the Committee or Court found the successful candidate not duly elected and ruled that another candidate was entitled to be declared elected.

³ An election 'upheld' was one in which the Committee or Court dismissed the petition and found the Member duly elected.

⁴ A 'withdrawn' petition includes a number of cases in which petitions lapsed due to a legal technicality or the Dissolution of Parliament. Also included in this category are some instances of petitioners failing to appear for the hearing. Petitions which were withdrawn after a hearing or trial commenced are not included in this category but are treated as elections upheld.

DOUBLE AND TREBLE RETURNS

Prior to the passing of the Ballot Act in 1872, a Returning Officer had no right to give a casting vote in the event of candidates polling the same number of votes. His duty was to return all candidates polling equal votes although they were not allowed to take their seats in the House of Commons until after election petitions had been decided. From 1872, a Returning Officer, if a registered elector in the constituency, could give a casting vote if the votes were equal.

¹ This double return was due to the loss of poll books and not to equal votes.

² Treble return. Three candidates in a two-member constituency polled equal votes.

INDEX TO CANDIDATES

This index lists the names of all candidates at General Elections from 1832 until 1880 and at intervening by-elections up to November 1885. The number or numbers following the name of each candidate indicate the constituency reference number which is given, after the name of the constituency, at the top of each page. It does not refer to the folio number which appears in small type at the foot of each page.

Owing to the lack of biographical information which is available about many of the candidates during this period, there is no doubt that some errors must have occurred. Every entry has been verified as far as possible but compiling an index of this size is complicated by changes in surname by deed poll, the adoption of additional surnames and by the acquirement of courtesy titles.

The Editor would appreciate notification of any corrections which would improve future reprints of this volume.

INDEX TO CONSTITUENCIES

This index shows the constituency reference number which is given, following the name of the constituency, at the top of each page. It does not refer to the folio number which appears in small type at the foot of each page. The index has been extensively cross-indexed for ease of reference.

The names of borough constituencies are followed, within brackets, by the name of the administrative county in which they were either entirely or mainly situated. The only exceptions are boroughs which bear the same name as the county. This information will allow readers to collate election results on a county basis.

For those who may wish to compare the 1832–1885 constituencies with those of post-1885, it should be noted that the following counties have changed their names during this century: Angus (formerly Forfarshire), East Lothian (formerly Haddingtonshire), Hampshire (formerly Southamptonshire), Midlothian (formerly Edinburghshire), Moray (formerly Elginshire), West Lothian (formerly Linlithgowshire).

The following abbreviations have been used:

Beds.	Bedfordshire	Mon.	Monmouthshire
Berks.	Berkshire	Northants.	Northamptonshire
Bucks.	Buckinghamshire	Notts.	Nottinghamshire
Glam.	Glamorganshire	Oxon.	Oxfordshire
Glos.	Gloucestershire	Salop.	Shropshire
Hants.	Hampshire	Staffs.	Staffordshire
Herts.	Hertfordshire	Wilts.	Wiltshire
Lancs.	Lancashire	Worcs.	Worcestershire
Lincs.	Lincolnshire	Yorks.	Yorkshire
Middx.	Middlesex
